I believe in conciliation, don't you? [Great applause.] They are in favor of shaking hands over the bloody chasm. So am I, but I do not want the grip to be so enthusiastic as to pull me into the chasm before the shaking is finished. [Laughter and applause.] I am opposed to turning the government of the nation into a hospital to engineer the vermifuge and liniment business in behalf of men who sought its destruction. [Laughter and applause.] I said I favored a change. Frequently the proprietors of a sheep-fold favor a change; it is one dog for another, but never one dog for a wolf. [Laughter and cheers.] I favor an exchange of one republican for another, but no such swap as proposed—exchanging one republican for a number of democrats. [Applause.]

I propose to discuss the democratic party and the democratic platform. Not being in a hurry, I will take my time to it. [Laughter.] I have come to stay. [Laughter.] I want to say here that I would like this audience to draw a distinction, a clear line of distinction, between the democratic party and the democrats. There is a great distinction to be drawn. There are millions of democrats better than their party none worse. [Laughter and applause.] The distinction is the same as between a corporation and a stockholder. I may find fault with a corporation and at the same time be on the best of terms with the stockholders.

I don't complain of the democratic party because it is sinful—it is sin itself. [Laughter and applause.] Not because it is wicked—it is wickedness itself. There is a big difference between having the smallpox and being the smallpox. [Great laughter and applause.] The democratic party is going it to business on the professed purity of its principles. It has nothing to offer voters but the purity of its principles. I sympathize with them. I am really sorry if our party could show no better record we would have cause for grief. [Applause.] The democratic party is like a mule. It has no pride of ancestry and no hope of posterity. [Great applause and continued laughter.]

We must judge parties as you would men. The democratic party comes to-day with a brand new candidate. The first plank of the platform reads: We pledge ourselves anew to the constitutional doctrines and traditions of the democratic party. That is all that means anything. Let us take that much of it. In 1856 the democratic party said that if slavery was introduced into the territories there was no power in the general government to prevent it. In 1880 we pledge ourselves anew to the doctrines and traditions of our party.' [Applause.] In 1860 it resolved it was improper for a state to secede, yet if it did secede there was no power in the general government to prevent it. In 1880, we pledge ourselves anew to the doctrines and traditions.' [Great laughter and applause.] In 1864, in convention assembled, the democratic party declared the war a failure and asked for a cessation of hostilities in order that peace might be restored on the basis of the federal union, and in 1880, we pledge ourselves to the doctrines and traditions of the party.' [Great applause.] You will find this entertaining as you proceed. [Laughter.] During the course of the war the democrats in the north supported the idea of a continuance of the fight after a peculiar fashion. They had a general who had no idea of fighting a battle so quietly that there would not be a breach of the peace in the neighborhood of where the conflict took place. [Laughter.] In 1863 the great prophet in New York declared the conscription law as revolutionary and void and in 1880 "we pledge ourselves anew to the doctrines and traditions of the party." [Applause.] In 1868 the democratic party, in its platform, advocated the payment of the national debt in greenbacks and in 1880 "we pledge ourselves anew to the doctrines and traditions," etc. [Applause.] In 1868 they advocated the taxing of government bonds and in 1880 "we pledge ourselves anew to the doctrines," etc. [Applause.] In 1868 they declared the reconstruction acts unconstitutional and void, and in 1880 "we pledge ourselves anew." [Great applause.] In 1868 and 1869 they declared the constitutional amendments unconstitutional, and in 1880 "we pledge ourselves." [Great applause.] Along in 1870, I think, the great state of Pennsylvania, efficient for some offense by the wrath of God, had a democratic legislature, which withdrew the ratification of the constitutional amendments and in 1880 "we pledge ourselves anew." [Laughter and applause.] During those long years the steady, persistent, bitter, bowing opposition of the democratic party in and out of congress met every measure conceived for the benefit of the country, and yet they pledge themselves anew to the doctrines and traditions. [Applause.]

The record of the republican party since 1856 was then reviewed briefly in connection with the prevailing war symptoms. It prevented the clothing of the territories with all the crimes of human chattelhood and rescued these now splendid empires from the clutches of slavery and dedicated them to freedom. It took the tall, gaunt man (Lincoln) from Illinois and made him president of the United States. This remark caused renewal of the applause. Then followed a description of the rebellion and the attitude of the republican party, which the speaker said, found four million human beings enslaved and made them freemen.

If not only made them American citizens, but gave them the weapon of the ballot, and in November we will answer if their weapon shall be used. By the living God, I say yes! [Applause.] The republican party reconstructed this union and made solemn promises in the organic law and I am in favor of keeping them. [Applause.]

Reviewing the record of the party further, the speaker said:

The sun never shone on so prosperous a people and the question is for you to determine if this party which has accomplished all of this is worthy of your attention in the future. You must judge parties as men not by promises, to a certain extent by the performance.

This democratic party, said Mr. Storrs, has always been troubled with a tender, prophetic, absurd love for the constitution more than for country. It loves the reaper better than the corpse; it loves the marriage certificate better than the wife. Just here he drew a witty analogy of a democrat and a republican with their wives, on a foundering vessel.

The democrat leaves his wife to drown and reaches for his marriage certificate, while the republican puts a life preserver around his wife and floats off to the shore and lets the marriage certificate go to the devil. [Laughter.] The democratic platform calls for honest money and professes to be the friend of the laboring man. It is a bald, bold, impudent lie. The democratic party has never been the friend of the laboring man. Prior to the war it degraded absolute labor in one-half of this nation. This party has been the deadly enemy for years of American protection.

Mr. Storrs, continuing, claimed that the core of present politics is the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments.

The democratic party denounces centralization. I never knew what it meant or at what particular act of the republican party this was aimed.

The speaker then read the two amendments cited. The fifteenth amendment, he said, makes a know nothing party impossible, and it was opposed by all democrats in both branches of congress.

Who shall enforce the guarantee of absolute political equality? he asked. Does that exist? No; the overshadowing scandal of the American government is and has been for years that this privilege, guaranteed by the constitution, has not been had. The issue is, by whom shall it be enforced? I say by the nation, who made the promise. [Applause.] It should carry out and execute to the fullest extreme every engagement it has made. That it has failed is infinitely more shameful than to repudiate the national debt. The disfranchised voter has been promised absolute political equality and he must possess it. Every other question sinks into comparative insignificance. We are told if we carry it out there will be disturbance and uproar, but there are many things worse. There are many things better than peace; better than peace is justice. [Applause.] I would rather have the country shaken by an earthquake than see the shivering black man bulldozed and driven from the polls. [Continued applause.]

Now followed a brilliant peroration, involving a graphic description of liberty protecting the disfranchised blacks to the polls, which evoked great applause. Dwelling upon the alleged terrorism at the south the speaker claimed that "appropriate legislation" demanded in the amendment meant effective measures to destroy the ruling condition of things. He would protect the voter and meet bull-dozing by bull dozing and shot-gun by shot-gun, and if the negro is driven from the polls by an armed force—an armed force organized—the army is the most appropriate way to protect him.

Refering to General Hancock's promise in his letter of acceptance, the speaker claimed that the democratic candidate could not keep them. He insisted that at New Orleans General Hancock was the facile tool of Andrew Johnson and his celebrated No. 40 order was but a perversion of the laws of the land. Politically General Hancock was nothing. He was silent at the grave on currency.

Mr. Storrs closed by predicting the election of Garfield in November.

Denver's Disastrous Fire.

DENVER, September 23.—The Times this afternoon contains the following report of this morning's fire: About a quarter after 11 this morning one of the fiercest fires that has occurred in this city for many months broke out among the combustible materials in the basement of the well-known wholesale drug store of J. Durbin & Sons, at No. 366 Blake street.

The alarm was turned in from box 13, and all the fire companies in the city were quickly upon the scene. The fire spread rapidly, and in a few minutes the entire building was filled with dense, stifling smoke, laden with the fumes of obnoxious and poisonous gases. This poured from the doors and windows and filled the streets, until at times objects were invisible at a distance of thirty feet, and to an observer standing on the opposite side of the street nothing of firemen, flame or buildings could be seen.

The fire department worked nobly, but for a long time made but little headway. The burning oils floated upon the water which filled the basement and defied the approach of the firemen, who were kept away from this quarter by the smoke which filled the rear of the building. Chief Deegan soon directed a portion of the department to the roofs of the lower buildings on each side, and holes being broken in the walls, streams were directed upon the flames. Other firemen, protected from the poisonous smoke by sponges, attempted to force their way through the front windows, but for a long time their efforts were ineffectual. Another stream, and finally two, were directed through the door and window at the rear. In this manner the fire was attacked upon all sides, and a flood of water was poured in from every direction. As many as ten streams were finally playing upon the flames.

Great fear was expressed of an explosion of some of the chemicals, and the crowd preserved a safe distance, but the firemen worked on heroically, attacked the flames at every available point. The Archer boys fought in smoke, mud and water at the rear; the North Denver Tabors and Hooks 2 in the front, and the Fishers and Bates at the sides. The ladders of Hooks 1 and 2 came in good service. Finally, after over an hour's hard work, the firemen began to gain headway. The men at the rear gained a glimpse of the flames in the basement and were enabled to direct the streams with greater effect. The water had little or no effect upon the oil for a long time, but the firemen gradually gained and finally about one o'clock, after over two hours of hard work, conquered.

The cause of the fire, in the absence of a definite explanation, must be laid to spontaneous combustion. It originated in the basement. An employe who went down about eleven o'clock, suddenly discovered the flames all around him, and gave the alarm. Before effective action could be taken the fire ascended the elevator.

The fire was confined to the building in which it originated, though some or less damage was done to all the buildings adjoining. The building belonged to W. S. Cheesman. Durbin & Co.'s loss will amount to $35,000 or $40,000, fully covered by insurance. A small amount of stock, consisting of show cases, etc., was removed upon the outbreak of the flames.

A. G. Potter occupied the building next on the east as a wholesale whisky and cigar establishment. A portion of his stock was removed to the store of S. Rose & Co. adjoining and the remainder rolled into the street. Besides the loss by water, considerable petty thieving was done. Potter's loss would have been nearly total but for the assistance of citizens in its removal.

The building on the west was occupied by B. Davidson, pawnbroker, and Martin & Co., wholesale fruit dealers. The former lost nothing, as the roof carried off the water. The latter's stock was damaged considerably.

J. G. Smith's barber shop and Sartori & Co's fruit stand on 15th street lost slightly by removal.

The following are the correct figures of the losses:

Durbin & Co.	$40,000
Martin & Co.	2,000
A. G. Potter	2,000

There were two car loads of California fruit in Martin's cellar, and there is now four feet of water there, with an inch of oil in it.

The building in which the fire occurred was one of the oldest in the city. It was built in 1863, the structure formerly occupying the spot having been destroyed in the great fire of that year.

GENERAL NEWS.

President Hayes Coming to Colorado.

SANTA FE, September 23.—Captain Valois of the ninth cavalry left Santa Fe to-day commanding the escort and transportation which is to meet President Hayes and party at Shakespeare, New Mexico, the present terminus of the Southern Pacific railroad. From Shakspeare Captain Valois will bring the party through in two days to San Marcial, the terminus of the A., T. & S. F. railroad, whence a special car brings them to the capital. The president will remain several days in Santa Fe, thence going to Colorado.

South Carolina's Census.

WASHINGTON, September 23. Two of the special agents sent to South Carolina to investigate the alleged census frauds returned and are preparing their report to General Walker. The nature of the report it is impossible to learn as General Walker forbids any intimation of it to be given out till completed and submitted to the secretary of the interior. It is generally believed however that these agents discovered frauds of a very serious character and South Carolina politicians spoke of them as spies and informers and in short manifested such an unfriendly spirit as to arouse suspicion and from the fact and from hints dropped at the census office it is regarded that evident frauds have been found in the census of that state sufficient to warrant its retaking by another set of supervisors and enumerators and both Secretary Schurz and General Walker are very emphatic in their statements that if fraud is found the work will be done over again.

Alleged Famine in Kansas.

DES MOINES, September 23. Levi Johnson, of Norton county, Kansas, is here soliciting aid for the people in Sheridan, Decatur, Sheridan, Rawlins and other counties. He says more than 18,000 people are in absolute want of food. The wheat crop in all the above named counties failed, and to June was plowed and planted to corn which has been destroyed by the web worm. Johnson says one family lived for weeks on wheat bran, and another three weeks on corn meal. The local and state papers support these facts as it will injure the state. A public meeting is called here this evening to provide supplies for these people.

Indiana Politics.

CHICAGO, September 23.—The Times says: Both old parties in Indiana are seriously troubled over the greenback vote. It is supposed it will not be less than forty thousand, but whether Porter or Landers will suffer most by it can only be told when the columns are footed up on the night of the 12th of October. The democrats have just discovered that there are thirty thousand voting Campbellites in the state and they are afraid that Garfield's connection with that sect will prove beneficial to him in a political sense. A rumor is in circulation that democratic managers have another scandal affecting Judge Porter which they will make public in a few days. If it is no more damaging than the one undertaken by them a few days ago, it will not hurt him any.

Railroads in Tennessee.

CHICAGO, September 23. The Inter-Ocean's Washington special says: Postmaster General Maynard returned from Tennessee to-day and says the republicans are very confident of electing Pettibone in the first congressional district, which will be a republican gain. He says the republican party in Tennessee are in excellent condition and will probably give Garfield the largest vote ever cast in the state.

Northern Explorers.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., September 23.—Members of the expedition headed by Lieut. Fred Schwatka, which sailed from New York June 1, 1878, for Baffin's Bay and King William's Land, for the purpose of seeking further data upon the fate of Sir John Franklin have arrived. Though the special object of the search for the recovery of the records of Franklin's expedition, which, according to the Esquimoux testimony, were known to exist at certain points, have not been attained, the explorers have nevertheless obtained many relics of Franklin's party, including the remains of Lieut. Irving. They have, moreover, carried out to the letter the instructions of the promoter of the expedition to make it a geographical success. The longest sledge ride on record both in regard to time and space, has been achieved in the face of phenomenonly cold weather, and deprivation of customary food. An important river and chasis have been discovered and serious errors on former charts have been corrected. The adventures of the Schwatka expedition add pages of interest to the romance of Arctic explorations, and furnish all the world is ever likely to know of the fate of Sir John Franklin. The conduct of Captain Barry, of the Fathan, in reference to the supplied goods intended to be deposited for the expedition is unaccountable and needs explanation, as the absence of those supplies on their return came near proving fatal to Lieut. Schwatka's party. The result of the expedition has shown that it is feasible for white men to adapt themselves to the climate and life of the Esquimaux, in prosecuting journeys in Polar regions, and they are not necessarily restricted to any particular season of the year for that purpose, but can travel at any time and in the same way which natives travel.

The County Central Committee suggests that the primaries for the purpose of electing delegates to the County Convention be held at the usual voting places in the several precincts on Saturday, September 25.

By order of the County Central Committee.

WALTER A. SMITH, Chairman.

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT,
JAMES A. GARFIELD.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT,
CHESTER A. ARTHUR.

Republican State Ticket.

FOR GOVERNOR,
F. W. PITKIN.

FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,
GEORGE B. ROBINSON.

FOR SECRETARY OF STATE,
N. H. MELDRUM.

FOR STATE TREASURER,
W. C. SANDERS.

FOR AUDITOR OF STATE,
JOSEPH T. DAVIS.

FOR SUPERINTENDENT PUBLIC INSTRUCTION,
L. S. CORNELL.

FOR REGENT STATE UNIVERSITY,
J. C. SHATTUCK.

FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL,
CHARLES H. TOLL.

FOR CONGRESS,
J. B. BELFORD.

FOR JUDGE OF THE FOURTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT,
I. C. HELM.

With the Herald and Chronicle in Leadville, the republican national and state ticket should come out of Leadville with 2,500 majority.

The great issue of the campaign is whether an American citizen shall enjoy the right of casting one uninitimidated ballot and have it honestly counted.

We are not so sure about Rosecrans voting for Hancock notwithstanding the assurance of the Leadville Democrat. In the army Garfield was Rosecrans' chief of staff and most trusty adviser.

Comment of a democratic paper on the knocking down and killing of a colored republican for hurrahing for Garfield: "A black republican has his wool combed with a brickbat, and won't yell for Garfield any more."

The Chinese problem has been tried in North Adams, Mass., and has settled itself. The employer is satisfied white labor is better. It simply shows that we must let this question alone and it will settle itself. We want free trade in labor as in everything else.

Hon. R. V. Pierce, representing the Buffalo district in congress has written a letter declining a renomination. His short political career has been used with the greatest discretion in advertising his "Purgative Pills." Having accomplished his intentions, he therefore withdraws from public life.

A gentleman recently asked Plaisted if he was a democrat. He replied, "I have never voted the democratic ticket, and, please God, I never will. I have heretofore voted for every republican presidential candidate, but this year, for the good of the country, I shall cast my ballot for Weaver and Chambers."

It is very easy to prove that either the south is not in the United States or else that the democratic party is hypocritical. The following quotation from the democratic platform shows it: "The right to a free ballot is a right preservative of all rights, and must and shall be maintained in every part of the United States."

The Gunnison county papers are all complaining of want of support in the districts in which they are published. This is to be regretted. The miners are standing in their own light in not liberally supporting a good paper. There is a class of miners who hail a dance house as a public improvement and drive out an industrious Chinaman as a curse. The same miners don't think 25 cents a glass for beer is high, but can't afford to buy a paper at ten cents a copy.

Now if republican papers, north or south, will only tell us how an honorable man can consistently vote for Garfield, we shall know much more than we do now, or ever expect to. Will our friend of the GAZETTE tackle this conundrum?—[Pueblo Democrat.

With pleasure. Honorable men can support Garfield because he has been jealous of the nation's honor and credit when it was assailed by soft money democrats; because his public career has been so pure and useful that leading papers and statesmen of both parties praised him before he was nominated at Cincinnati; in short, because he is an honest man.

The equality of the dollars is certain to proceed from the free coinage of silver in this country, a measure that will force Germany to remonetize that metal or lose the bulk of her present supply, a loss which the people of that empire are not able to sustain.—[Denver News.

The News, as usual, on the silver question, has the above just opposite from the truth. It is the fact, that the United States and the Latin union do not allow free coinage, that forces Germany to bimetallism. If free coinage were allowed Germany would get rid of her silver and increase her stock of gold. But as it is, the mints of the Latin union and the United States are closed against her, and she cannot get rid of her silver except at a great discount. This Germany is unwilling to do and hence she has a great body of depreciated demonetized silver on hand and this compels her to reduce her gold reserve. Under these circumstances it is only a question of time when Germany will go back to bimetallism. If we were, however, to open our mints to the free coinage of the 412½ grain dollar, Germany would exchange her silver for our gold, and not only would be relieved of her distress but would give up all ideas of a return to bimetallism. The advocates of the free coinage of our depreciated dollar are the worst enemies silver has. The silver interest of Colorado wants bimetallism as universal as possible. To accomplish that, it is better that the United States should not allow the free and unlimited coinage of silver at present.

It is only a few days now before Indiana will vote. Both parties are confident of carrying the state. The republicans have only a small democratic majority to overcome and the good times should enable them to do it. Indiana is by no means a sure democratic state. In 1876 the democratic majority was only 5,515, while in 1878 the democratic party was 25,000 in a minority. Among business men there is undoubtedly a great desire for the election of Garfield. As showing the feeling among business men, we publish the following correspondence which explains itself.

OFFICE STUDEBAKER BROTHERS' MANUFACTURING COMPANY.
SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 8, 1880.

The Hon. W. G. DePauw, New Albany, Indiana.

DEAR SIR:—In conversation with you some time since I gained the impression that you coincided with me in the belief that the success of the republican party in the coming election was a thing to be greatly desired, both by manufacturers and their employees. I have so stated several times in this city, but the enclosed extract from your democratic paper here discredits what I have said on the subject.

Please write me the facts about your position in this matter, and I would be glad if you would consent that such information should be made public, or at least that I may have permission to show the same to my friends. No man in the state stands higher than yourself in commercial or business circles, and your views, as indicated, at the present time, would have great weight.

There has never been an election since I have attained to years of maturity in which I have taken so deep an interest as in this one, believing as I do that it would be a real calamity to the country to change the existing prosperity now everywhere apparent, and daily becoming more assured.

Very truly yours,
CLEM STUDEBAKER.

DE PAUW'S AMERICAN GLASS WORKS,
NEW ALBANY, Ind., Sept. 15, '80.

The Hon. Clem Studebaker, South Bend, Indiana:

DEAR SIR: Your letter of the 8th inst. to father came duly to hand, with inclosure.

In reply, would say that my father supported Senator Hendricks in 1872, and Governor Williams in 1876. He has never voted for a republican candidate for president.

This year, however, father, as well as my brother Charles and myself, his only sons together with many of our democratic employes, will vote for Porter and Garfield and Arthur. Very truly yours,
N. T. DE PAUW, Cashier.

Order of the Day.

Heaven's first law is order, and the order of the day is that the Centennial Silver State should vote for the interests of silver. The best interests of silver demand that there shall be no limits to its coinage, and that there shall be one hundred cents worth of silver in each dollar. That is just what the republican party of Colorado demands. That is just what you will promote by voting for Pitkin, Robinson and Belford.—[Leadville Chronicle.

Judge Tourgee at Valparaiso.

VALPARAISO, Ind., September 20.—The Academy of Music was crowded to overflowing last night to listen to a speech from Judge Tourgee, author of "A Fool's Errand." He held the vast audience spellbound for three hours. Many were compelled to stand during the whole time. Still there was no impatience manifested, nor any notice taken of the passing moment. The speech was replete with telling points and clean cutting wit, that brought forth round after round of applause. If the republicans could have several speeches like the one to-night, Lande would come several thousand votes short of being governor.—[Telegram to the Chicago Inter Ocean.

Indirect Blow at Silver.

The greatest blow to silver as a standard of value is the attempt to call eighty-eight cents a dollar. Silver can only become a standard of value by such legislation as will make silver coin worth just what it purports to be worth. A dollar must be worth one hundred cents or it is nothing more than a government token.—[Leadville Herald.

What the Three Parties Have in Maine.

The Philadelphia Press figures up what the three parties have secured in Maine as follows:

The republicans,	The Governor, The Legislature, The United States senator, Three Congressmen.
The greenbackers	Two Congressmen.
The democrats	0

What San Juan Will do.

All portions of Colorado are preparing to roll up a largely increased republican majority, and San Juan will not be away in the background. San Juan will give a rousing majority for Pitkin, and a respectable one for Garfield and Arthur and the state ticket. We expect to see Governor Pitkin lead the rest of the ticket by several thousand votes.—[Ouray Times.

Enthusiasm for Robinson.

Summit county supports her favorite with an ardor that is commendable. George B. will shake the hands of many friends after election with a greater satisfaction than he experienced at his nomination, even though his nomination was equivalent to his election.—[Summit County Times.

Age before Beauty.

"Age before beauty" is the motto the world over. So it will be in the Colorado campaign, and Governor Routt will lead the superb Welborn.—[Denver Tribune.

"Poor fellow, he was killed at Sailor's Run. He was dressed as a scout chasing the rebs. As usual, he was way in advance. A union soldier mistook him for a rebel and shot him through the back. It was terribly sad. Just at the end of the war. A braver fellow never lived."—[New Haven Union.

THE RETREAT OF JOSEPHINE.

Reminiscences of the Chateau Malmaison that is About to be Sold for Building Lots.

All the old historical French chateaux are gradually falling under the auctioneer's hammer or crumbling away in ruins. Chenonceaux, the favorite residence of Diane de Poitiers and Catherine de Medicis, now belongs to a republican deputy who two years ago entertained there a number of the most fervent admirers of Paul Louis Courier, the arch enemy of monarchs. Fouquet's palace at Vaux is now the property of a sugar refiner. Luciennes, built for Mme. Dubarry, is in the hands of a manufacturer. Sardou is the owner of the palace of the Montmorencys; a linen draper has bought Chamarande, a gift of Napoleon III, to the Duke of Tessigny, a score of others have had a similar destiny, while Meudon, St. Cloud and the Tuileries have been reduced to heaps of ruins. But the Malmaison is richer in attaching noble souvenirs than them all; it is the freshest oasis in the whole of Napoleon's career of devastation. Madame Bonaparte bought the property in 1798 for the trifling sum of £6,400, and there it was that the future Empress Josephine spent the happiest and most sorrowful portions of her life. Her Thursday receptions form a picture of delightful repose in the midst of those busy, boisterous times. There she held a court surrounded by beauties, poets and artists, among whom were Bernardin de St. Pierre, Legouve, Joseph Chenier, Picard, Collin d'Harleville, Volney, Talma, Ducis, Lesueur, Girodet, Nepomucene Lemercier, whom, republican though he was, Josephine won over to the cause of the First Empire, and a host of other men of talent. The charm of those Thursdays was still further heightened by the dazzling beauty of the future Queen Hortense, the Countess Fanny de Beauharnais, Mme. Tallien, Mme. d'Houdetot, Mme. Caffarelli, and many others. That army of elite endeavored, by elegance of language, dress and manners, to stem the current of coarseness, brutality and violence let loose by the revolution. At times a thin little man, with yellow complexion, hair lying flat on his head, and sparkling black eyes, might be seen talking in a retired corner with a general in uniform, and might be heard breaking into the general conversation, so elegant and so recherche, with a brusque, concise and decisive soldierly phrase. That was young General Bonaparte. It was at the Malmaison that the 18th Brumaire was prepared. It was there, too, that Lemercier read his tragedy of "Charlemagne" to the First Consul, who wanted him to change the document, so as to show the conquered nations coming to Charlemagne to offer him in great pomp the crown and empire of the east. The Consulate raised Malmaison to its highest splendor, but no sooner had Napoleon become emperor than Josephine's modest chateau was abandoned for the palatial magnificence of St. Cloud. After the divorce, La Malmaison became the Kimbolton of the modern Catharine of Aragon. The fallen empress pined and died there during the first invasion. The allied sovereigns invited themselves to dine with her, and it was while showing the Emperor of Russia the grounds that Josephine caught the cold that carried her to the grave three days later. After Waterloo Napoleon revisited the scene of the only happiness he had ever known, and paid a nocturnal visit to the tomb of his once loved Josephine. On leaving the Malmaison he went direct to Rochefort, where the Bellerophon was waiting for him. La Malmaison, has it is understood, been bought by a speculator who intends to sell it in small lots. In future some thrifty peasant will, no doubt, sleep in the chamber where the conqueror of a world was wont to seek repose.—[Galignani.

What a Goat Did.

Maybe there is never any excitement at the West End, but you can't make the people who saw a colored gentleman try to lead a goat through that district the other day believe it. At first the goat didn't want to go, and the colored gentleman, who was about ten feet ahead of the animal, pulled vigorously on the rope. He had just got his whole strength on it when the goat changed his mind and started forward so suddenly that the colored gentleman didn't have time to recover his balance and went down, and as the goat ran past him, and kept running he was dragged along, clawing wildly, until his head collided with a lamp post, and he brought the procession to a halt. On regaining his feet the colored gentleman was very angry and ran for the goat to kick him, and the goat took to flight, and they flew at a rapid pace down the street. About five rods ahead the goat observed a citizen bending over to look down an open coal hole, and on reaching him the goat contrived to hit him just under the hip-pocket, and the citizen disappeared down the coal hole like a shot just as the colored gentleman stumbled over the goat, which had come to a halt. A number of people had gathered about, and then the goat took a notion to turn and go the other way, and he got the rope so entangled in people's feet that seven were upset and much blasphemy resulted. The man down the coal hole then attempted to climb out, and got his head and shoulders above ground when the goat made another rush at him and he had to dodge down again. And then the goat assaulted his owner, who went up a lamp-post, and then the goat went for another man, and as the owner had tied the rope to his belt he was yanked off the lamp-post quicker than powder. Fortunately for him his belt broke and he sprang to his feet and took off towards H—yard college yelling fire, and the goat suddenly jumped into an open window, scared a woman into a fainting fit and upset a table on which stood a dish of hot water. He got most of the water upon himself, and made more frantic by pain jumped out of the window again, butted a bulldog and stove in three of the canine's ribs and then disappeared down the street amid a cloud of dust just as a policeman came around to shoot him. And the man down the coal-hole came up with awful expressions on his face and in his language and offered $75 to any one who would tell him whom to sue for damages.—[Boston Post.

Rumor in theatrical circles in Denver places the rent to be asked for the Tabor opera house at $16,000 per year. In the event of Mr. Tabor's appointing a manager to look after it for him, Mr. Edwin F. Knowles is the most favorably spoken of.

We learn that a late run from the north shaft of the Ruby King mine at Irwin, adjoining the Forest Queen, gave a return of seven and three tenths ounces of gold per ton. The yield of gold from this vein, on the King and Queen mines, has steadily increased with depth, from a trace at the surface to the above showing, while the silver yield remains constant at about one thousand ounces per ton for first class ore.

SONGS OF OLD LAND AND SEA.

The Hutchinson Family Recall the Days of Yore.

The Hutchinson Family have sung their way into the hearts of the people. Their songs have been household words for more than a quarter of a century, and their personality has become a possession of all Americans.

There were but few in the large audience that greeted the Hutchinsons in Court House Hall last evening that met them there for the first time. The venerable figure of Asa B. Hutchinson must have been familiar to all but the youngest of those present. It is true that the ranks of the famous family have been broken but the places made vacant have been well filled.

The entertainment last evening was a charming concert in which Mr. Asa Hutchinson acted as leader, announcing each number previous to its presentation. The songs were, many of them, old favorites and were given with a precision and sweetness that made them additionally acceptible.

Mr. Asa Hutchinson still retains those agreeable qualities of voice, and that fund of quaint humor which have made him such a universal favorite. He sang last evening with all his wonted fire and received enthusiastic applause. His comical musical description of the old fashioned medical practice, with its never failing prescription of "Calomel," was wonderfully funny and was greeted with hearty and prolonged laughter. It was the humorous success of the evening.

Mrs. H. L. Luley is certainly a very beautiful woman and a thoroughly accomplished singer. Her voice is rich and full, of great compass and surpassing sweetness. The charm of her person and the melody of her voice won instant recognition and she was not allowed to escape in a single instance the granting of an encore. We have rarely heard Cupi Fatal Mestina sung in a more artistic manner than that in which it was rendered last evening by Mrs. Luley, and we have never heard Within a Mile of Edinboro Town given with greater archness or more melody.

Madame D'Avignon, the contralto of the troupe, possesses a fine voice, and as an accompanist displayed a thorough appreciation of the demands placed upon her.

The remaining members of the company were above criticism, and only lack of space prevents a personal mention of each. The concert concluded with the Creed of the Bells, which as a concerted piece, was the success of the evening. Reciters have made the Creed of the Bells a terror to all sensitive people, but as it was sung last evening it became a thrilling source of delight. The concert as a whole was most enjoyable, and the frequent applause of the audience testified to their appreciation of the entertainment.

Yesterday's Races.

The races yesterday afternoon were quite well attended and some very exciting sport was witnessed. The horsemen say that they were two of the most interesting races that have taken place in Colorado Springs this season. Race No. 1 was for $100, best two in three between B. C. Holly's b s Claymore and G. S. Holmes' br g Richard Ames, which was won by the latter in two straight heats. The race in which the most interest was manifested was that between Eagle Bird, owned by B. C. Holly and Sleepy Tom, named by B. L. Terry. These two horses were considered to be well matched and even bets had ready takers. It was thought Eagle Bird held a slight advantage over Sleepy Tom from the fact that he had been in training during the entire season while Tom had not. In the first heat both horses got a good start and from wire to wire the race was a close one. Sleepy Tom's side wheel motion caused much amusement and it was with the utmost exertion that Eagle Bird retained the lead which he gained on the half mile stretch. Both horses displayed excellent bursts of speed when coming down the home stretch and Eagle Bird passed under the wire only a short distance in advance of his opponent. Time 2 38¼.

When time was called for the second heat the excitement was intense and Sleepy Tom's admirers cheered the old pacer loudly when he made his appearance in front of the judges stand. Again both animals secured a good start and when they passed the half mile pole it was evident to all that that heat would be a still closer one than the first. At the three quarter mile pole no perceptible change could be noticed and they turned down the home stretch neck and neck. The crowd at this stage of the game became wild with enthusiasm, hats were thrown skyward, and cheer upon cheer rent the air. To all appearances Sleepy Tom had a slight lead when Eagle Bird lost his footing and for a few moments displayed some fine touring which materially changed the result of the heat, as he passed under the wire about a head in advance of Sleepy Tom. The judges declared it a dead heat.

The last heat, like the rest, was a very closely contested one and was won by Eagle Bird.

A gentleman of this city picked some strawberries in his garden yesterday which were of very large size and first class quality. The berries ripened in the open air and were produced by a freak of nature. This shows that the season of Colorado is long enough to raise late fruit.

COLORADO RAILROADS.

Jay Gould Watched for Once.

The Chicago Tribune of last Friday contains the following interesting article on Jay Gould, and his ambition concerning Colorado railroads. Late developments indicate that Gould stands in immediate danger of losing his grip on the Denver & Rio Grande railroad, and that the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad will again resume its former friendly relations with that line. It has heretofore been stated that Gould was making strenuous efforts to bring about a consolidation of the Denver & South Park and the Denver & Rio Grande, as that would greatly strengthen his hold on the latter owing to the large interest he holds in the former. His efforts in that direction have thus far been in vain, and there is no present prospect that he will ever succeed. Mr. Gould in this instance seems to have tumbled into the hole he dug for the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe people. When that road leased the Denver and Rio Grande about two years ago, it struck a snag in the person of General Palmer, the president and one of the principal owners. General Palmer, for some reason or other, became dissatisfied with the lease to the Santa Fe, and commenced a warfare against it in order to upset the arrangement and get the Rio Grande under his control again. General Palmer finally succeeded in wresting the property from the hands of the Santa Fe people. But he would never have succeeded in this but for the aid and comfort he received from Gould. This shrewd manipulator, whose great desire it is to control all the railroads in Colorado, saw that there was an opportunity to take advantage of the complications and finally get possession of the Rio Grande and amalgamate it with his other roads. He offered General Palmer all the aid and backing he needed, at the same time buying up all the stock he could. This gentleman, however, seems to be as shrewd as Mr. Gould, and no doubt he comprehended the game that was to be played. He accepted Mr. Gould's services, but took good care to keep the control of the road in the hands of himself and his devoted friend, Mr. Wocrishoefer.

"When, through the aid of Gould, he had succeeded in getting back the Rio Grande he was no longer as sweet upon Mr. Gould as he had been before, and at once set to work to thwart him in his schemes. For this reason he solicited the aid of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe people, whom he had been fighting so successfully, and these gentlemen were only too glad to have an opportunity to pay Gould back in his own coin, and willingly entered into an offensive and defensive treaty with General Palmer by which the two roads pooled their issues. This accounts for the surprising fact that, since the close of the Denver and Rio Grande fight, the two contestants have been on the most friendly terms, and that the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe abandoned its scheme of building a line from Pueblo to Denver and another to Leadville. It has no longer any use for doing it, as it could use the Denver and Rio Grande to those points just as advantageously as if it owned a line of its own. Mr. Gould does not seem to have understood this until lately, when he found that General Palmer was the principal opponent of his consolidation scheme."

Our Wheat.

Crops in the San Luis Park have turned out pretty fair, in spite of the distressing drought that prevailed for such a long time.

They do not snatch bodies in Leadville, because the people are too busy taking care of the living to look after the dead but they have developed a new industry in stealing the coffins of the dead.

The day after Ouray's death, Conatche, an old ex-chief of the Cimarrons, was killed by a stroke of lightning while sitting in his tent. A dog on one side of him was killed, but his daughter sitting by him was uninjured.

A petition to have the streets of Black Hawk named and numbered will go up before the next meeting of the city council. At present some streets are given a half dozen different names, while some have no name at all.

Idaho Springs has a negro woman by the name of Parker who goes into a trance every day or two. While in this state her spirit leaves Idaho and goes wandering over the country, chatting with friends and bringing messages back to people living in this city. For long distances Mrs. Parker is more serviceable than a telephone.

The grand canon of the Gunnison, which begins only a short distance from Silverton, is equal in splendor and wildness of scenery to the canon of the Colorado, and throws the canon of the Arkansas into the shade. It is upwards of forty miles long, and the mountains rise on either side to the height of upwards of 5 000 feet. As yet, the trout along traverse the cleft mountain pass.

The other day Phil Collins, of Silver Plume, wagered forty dollars with Patrick Effen that he, Collins, could run from Brownsville to Georgetown in thirty minutes—the distance for the round trip being a few yards over five miles. He made the run from Brownsville to Georgetown in thirty-one minutes thus losing by one minute. However the time, considering the condition of the road, is believed to be the best on record.

The additions to the Presbyterian church are taking shape and will make a great improvement in the appearance of the edifice.

The Denver and Rio Grande railway is progressing rapidly towards Kokomo. It will reach that place about the last of October. The depot grounds have been surveyed both at Robinson's Camp and at Kokomo. There are now over one hundred men and fifty teams at work along the route, and grading has been done in several of the worst places on the range on the other side of Chalk mountain. Indeed, as it now appears, and considering the very business like manner in which the work has progressed from the start, the road will be fully equipped and cars running long before snow comes in quantities.
